Representatives of development companies participating in the conference programme of Russian Construction Week annually purchase construction products worth

5 trillion roubles

Marat Khusnullin
Deputy Prime Minister of Russia

"We still have to create new quality infrastructure for our people to live, rest and work. Together we can improve the lives of the people and increase the contribution of the construction industry and the housing and utilities sector to the development of this country, but to achieve these goals we need everyone to be involved. Events such as Russian Construction Week are one of the ways to share experience and encourage a professional dialogue."

The main goal of Russian Construction Week is to exploit the potential of exhibitions and congresses in Russia's construction industry to boost the implementation of government programmes, national projects, housing renovation programmes, creation of a modern urban environment, and support for low-rise housing construction.

“This is the third time that we participate in RosBuild, and each time we realise that the exhibition gives us a large number of new customers. I can say that we have almost doubled our turnover in the past 2023. It shows that the market is very vibrant, very alive, because we are part of the construction industry.

We realise that the construction market has grown quite well and, accordingly, so have we. I think that Russian Construction Week helps us a lot in

Kirill Kholopik
Chief of Staff at the National Association of Home Builders, Head at the ERZ.RF portal

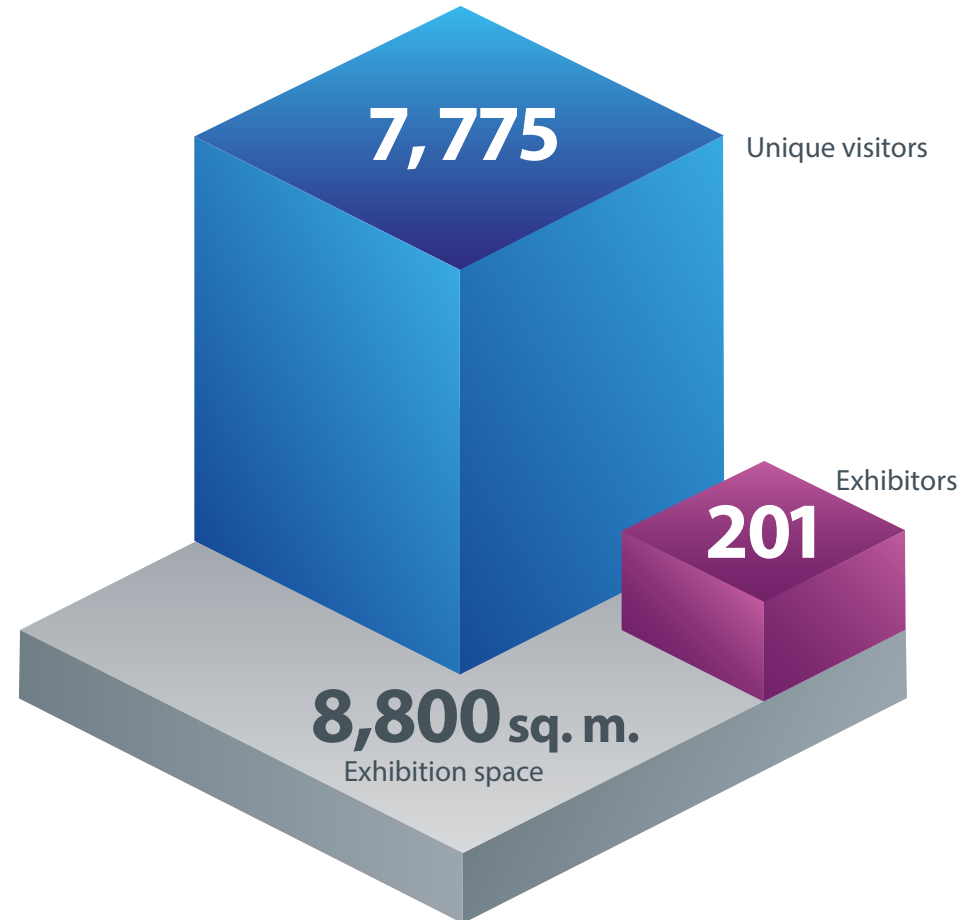

“Today, Russian Construction Week is becoming a leading centre for information exchange. We keep a separate record of attendance at the conference programme, and this year we see a more than twofold increase. This shows the interest in the event. We expect that next year there will be two or three times as many participants.”

Testimonials

Denis Fursov
Sales Director, YTA

“World of Glass is our regular and most favourite exhibition. This exhibition attracts the most attention and brings together the most customers and, accordingly, brings the largest number of useful meetings with which we work for a whole year. It's all World of Glass. We always show up with a big stand as the largest machine tool company in the industry. We would prefer to have a smaller stand, but we can't, because this is our business card. Everyone knows us in this very role.”

Sofia Shaybakovich
Marketing and Advertising Manager, PSI

“The density of meetings is very high. Compared to previous years, the attendance of our stand has increased several times. Therefore, a stand of 78 square metres is no longer enough for us. Next year we will have to take more. There is room to grow.”
